Interpersonal Injustice and Workplace Deviance

The Role of Esteem Threat

Abstract

The authors integrated predictions from the group value model of justice with an esteem threat framework of deviance to examine the within-person relation between interpersonal justice and workplace deviance. Using a moderated-mediation approach, they predicted that daily interpersonal justice would be lower for those with lower daily self-esteem; daily self-esteem would moderate the relation between daily interpersonal justice and workplace deviance. Using 1,088 daily diary reports from various industries, the results generally supported the model, linking daily interpersonal justice and daily workplace deviance. The effects of previously established mediators (trust and respect) were controlled for. Theoretical and practical implications are discussed.

Abstract

Although leader-member exchange (LMX) was identified in the literature nearly 40 years ago, a comprehensive empirical examination of its antecedents and consequences has not been conducted. The authors' examination included 247 studies, containing 290 samples, and 21 antecedents and 16 consequences of LMX quality. Results indicated that while leader behaviors and perceptions, follower characteristics, interpersonal relationship characteristics, and contextual variables represent significant groups of LMX antecedents, leader variables explained the most variance in LMX quality. Moderator analyses revealed that the particular LMX scale, country of participants, and work setting studied did not produce meaningful influences

Abstract

Although leader-member exchange (LMX) was identified in the literature nearly 40 years ago, a comprehensive empirical examination of its antecedents and consequences has not been conducted. The authors' examination included 247 studies, containing 290 samples, and 21 antecedents and 16 consequences of LMX quality. Results indicated that while leader behaviors and perceptions, follower characteristics, interpersonal relationship characteristics, and contextual variables represent significant groups of LMX antecedents, leader variables explained the most variance in LMX quality. Moderator analyses revealed that the particular LMX scale, country of participants, and work setting studied did not produce meaningful influences on the relationships in the meta-analysis. However, power distance and individualism did moderate some of these relationships. To provide continuity with the LMX meta-analyses and conceptual reviews that have focused on LMX consequences, the authors tested a number of mediation models. The results demonstrated that LMX frequently plays a mediating role in the relationships where it can be tested.

What is RSS?

RSS stands for Really Simple Syndication or Rich Site Summary. RSS is used by (among other things) news websites, weblogs and podcasting. RSS feeds provide web content, or summaries of web content, together with links to the full versions of the content. RSS delivers this information as an XML file called an RSS feed, webfeed, RSS stream, or RSS channel. In addition to facilitating syndication, RSS feeds allow a website's frequent readers to track updates on the site as soon as they become available using an aggregator. The aggregator provides a consolidated view of the content on a mobile device or desktop application. Such aggregators or applications are also referred to as RSS readers.

Where are SAGE RSS Feeds available and for what content?

SAGE offers RSS feeds on all journal homepages on Sage Journals.

The RSS feeds allow you to bring together the latest tables of contents for your favorite journals into one RSS reader. There is no limit to how many SAGE journal tables of contents you can subscribe to.

What are the advantages of SAGE RSS feeds?

- * Your RSS reader will indicate whenever you have unread tables of contents.
- * You choose when to look at the RSS feeds and they don't clog up your email.
- * The RSS feeds have abstracts and link directly to the articles on SAGE Journals Online.
- * You do not have to give any personal details to sign up to receive RSS feeds.

How do I start using SAGE RSS feeds?

Select an RSS reader or service, such as Bloglines, Yahoo, etc. Try this site: <http://blogspace.com/rss/readers>

Select the RSS subscription preferred. You can choose to either receive the 'Current issue only' and/or the last four issues with
